FOREWORD

Public Law 93-400 requires that the Office of Federal Procurement Policy (OFPP), Office of Management and Budget "... establish a system for collecting, developing, and disseminating procurement data which takes into account the needs of the Congress, the executive branch, and the private sector." Under the aegis and guidance of OFPP, design of the Federal Procurement Data System was completed in early 1978 and data collection began on October 1, 1978. At the same time, a Federal Procurement Data Center was established to operate the system, providing a central point to respond to the requirements of the legislative, executive, and judicial branches, and the private sector.

For the first time, departments and agencies of the executive branch are reporting uniform acquisition information to a central point which can produce data on all or any part of executive branch acquisitions. The data can be used for geographical analysis, market analysis, and as indicators of congressional and presidential initiatives in a number of socio-economic areas such as small business, minority business enterprises, and other disadvantaged business. The data also should be useful as a reliable basis for measuring and assessing the impact of Federal acquisition on the Nation's economy, for the development of acquisition policy, and for management improvement.

Basic acquisition data will be published for each quarter of the fiscal year in the Quarterly Report of Federal Acquisition Awards. In addition, Special Analyses will be published each quarter to meet special information needs.

The system which provides the basis for these publications is operational. However, not all of the executive departments and agencies, many of which procure through another department or agency, were able to obtain reports from purchasing and contracting offices around the country and around the world on a timely basis. The table on page iv shows the percent of each executive department and agency actions and dollars which are included in the data for this quarter. Updated department and agency submissions are still being received and processed; consequently, the final report for this quarter will differ from the preliminary data contained in this publication.
